Summary of the occupational therapy profession in Europe 2012

Message from the COTEC Executive

The Council of Occupational Therapists for the European Countries (COTEC) was founded in 1986 by twelve Occupational Therapy associations of the then Member States of the European Community. It was primarily established to create a single voice for Occupational Therapy at European level, harmonise the educational structure of the profession within the Community and minimise obstacles that inhibited the mobility of occupational therapists across Europe. 2011 was a significant year for COTEC. Not only did the Council celebrate 25 years in existence, but it also achieved legal status. COTEC is now a registered Non-Government Organisation (NGO) with its official base in Germany. COTEC has enhanced its collaboration with ENOTHE throughout 2011. Working groups across the two organisations have since been established and the first joint congress has been planned in Galway, Ireland in 2016.

Since its inception, COTEC has mainly focused its work on internal organisational and professional issues as well as the development of the profession in Europe. Part of this has involved the Council collating a summary of the profession. The Summary has been collated annually since 1986. This work has supported the creation of new national Occupational Therapy associations and advocated for the profession with regard to national health and welfare legislation in European countries. In addition these statistics aim to publicise the profile of the profession around Europe. From a practical point of view, this yearly document provides up to date information on requirements for working in each member country as well as a broad picture of the profession across Europe.

In summary, the number of practising occupational therapists in Europe rose in 2012 to 124,723, an increase of 2,611 since 2011. Although there is an overall increase in those practising, there has been a decrease of 1,538 in those participating in their national association between 2011 and 2012. Germany reported the highest number of practising occupational therapists in their country (n=35,000) while the United Kingdom reported the highest number of therapists in their national association (n=23,362). Both Latvia and Croatia reported that 100% of their practising therapists are also members of their national association.

There are currently 368 OT schools throughout Europe with 276 of them being approved by WFOT. Germany has the highest number of WFOT approved OT schools (n=133) followed by the United Kingdom (n=62). Post graduate education with an OT focus is strong in Europe with 11 member countries of COTEC offering OT specific Masters programmes. Although research in OT is strongly advocated in Europe within the profession, currently, there are 3 countries in Europe where it is possible to study an OT specific PhD.

The Executive would like to present the Summary of the Occupational Therapy Profession for 2012 and would like to thank all delegates of COTEC for their continued support in collating information for this document.
